

DEADLOCK AT MOSCOW

U.S., Taking Real Hand In European Affairs, Backs Policy as Sound

This is the first of a series recapitulating the outstanding policies, personalities and difficulties of the just concluded Big Four foreign ministers conference at Moscow by members of The Associated Press team who viewed the proceedings at first hand.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
MOSCOW, April 28.—The United States came out of the Moscow conference with the most clearly defined European policy it has ever had. Within the American delegation led by Secretary of State George C. Marshall there was hope that his policy, embracing a half dozen major points, would rally support from non-Communist peoples all over Europe. From this point, the United States appears to have made its greatest bid for European leadership in the postwar years.

1,100,000 GET WAGE BOOSTS

General Electric, Chrysler and J.L. Corp. Latest To Sign Contracts

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, April 28.—Three new wage settlements announced over the weekend brought to nearly 1,100,000 the number of workers in the steel, automobile and electrical industries who won wage increases during April.

Settlements boosting hourly wages approximately 15 cents when vacation pay and other benefits are included were announced Saturday by General Electric Co., Chrysler Corp. and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp.

This wage pattern developed during a month that saw these four major developments in the labor and economic field: (1) Initial congressional action on labor legislation; (2) an appeal from the administration to stem the rise of prices; (3) a 6-day walkout of 400,000 mine workers called in memory of 11 miners dead in the Cornish, Ill., disaster; a stoppage that lengthened to two weeks for most mines; and (4) the strike of more than 300,000 telephone workers (CIO), which will affect also 15,000 unaffiliated and salaried employees, left only Ford Motor Co. among the "big three" with wage negotiations still pending.

Ford negotiations were to begin May 31 but in view of the settlements by General Motors and Chrysler they may open sooner. General Electric's settlement with 125,000 members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (UAW), which Chrysler's UAW, provided an 11 1/2 cents increase for hourly workers and six paid vacations year, G. Meter Educational Campaign Ended, Fines Now To Be Made Salem's parking meter "honeymoon" is over.

Although enforcement of meters began last Thursday and totaled 177 tickets through Saturday night, Mayor R. R. Johnson was liberal with the first offenders and didn't assess the stipulated $1 fine for over-time parking.

But starting this morning that is all over, Police Chief Nerr Gaunt said. Violators from now on can expect to draw the $1 fine and possibly more, depending on the circumstances.

The three-day educational program carried out carefully by police ended at 9 p. m. Saturday after 177 tickets had been issued.

Several tickets also were issued for parking in prohibited zones and some for parking too far from the curb.

Patrolmen Howard Forney and Martin Lutsch are checking the meters.

Hours of Operation
Fifty-one of the tickets were issued Saturday, when meters are effective from 8 a. m. until 9 p. m. On other days, except Sundays and legal holidays, the meters are enforced from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m.

Again this morning a definite relief of the usual congested parking situation was evident downtown as spaces were available almost anywhere in the business section.

Merchants noticed a distinct improvement in the parking situation on Saturday afternoon also, usually the worst time to find a parking spot.

Officials were pleased with the results of the first three days of the educational campaign, for not only did the set-up relieve parking congestion but it promises to provide funds for the addition of three patrolmen to the regular force.

Work will begin in the next week or two.

MAJOR BREAK IS HINTED IN PHONE STRIKE

Developments Forecast for Late Today; Conferences Held

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 28.—Amid talk of close-pending developments, the Labor department today drove ahead in triple-header conferences to end the telephone strike.

Department officials tipped reporters to watch for developments this afternoon. President Joseph A. Beirne of the striking National Federation of Telephone Workers said in Pittsburgh he expects "a major break, possibly today or tomorrow."

The source of this optimism was not explained. Earlier a wave of hope had sprung up in the wake of a $2.50-a-week wage increase offered by the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company for five Midwest states.

However, it was rejected by Iowa union workers, and an attorney for the unions involved, Henry Mayer, said in New York the offer was "wholly inadequate."

Conferences Underway
Labor department meetings involving three Bell system units—the long distance division, Western Electric Company, and Southwestern Bell Telephone Company—were in progress or scheduled.

Peter G. Manno, federal conciliator in the long lines dispute, told reporters: "I'm smiling. Any time I smile it means something."

The northwestern negotiations are among the more than 20 involving Bell Company subsidiaries throughout the nation. All the companies have offered to arbitrate the wage issues in dispute. But until the Northwestern proposal, none had agreed to even a token wage raise.

The strikers cut their wage demand from $12 to $5 a week last Friday, to match the 15 cent hourly boosts granted in steel, auto and other industries.

CLEVELAND, April 28.—A huge mass picketing demonstration was scheduled today by the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers protesting an alleged statement by an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. official that union members would return to work "on their knees like whipped puppies."

The Baptist church at the corner of S. Lincoln and E. State st., which was gutted by fire April 5, is in the process of being sold. Several firms have shown an interest in the property, but nothing definite has been decided as yet regarding its disposal.

Eight contributions, totaling $86, were received by the church in its building fund drive over the weekend. This amount brings the total in the drive thus far to $3,687.41.

Gifts received were two of $25, two of $10, three of $5 and $1.

Sec. Marshall On Radio At 8:30

WASHINGTON, April 28.—American hopes for an easing in U. S.-Soviet tensions were buoyed today by reports that Secretary of State Marshall believes this country's firmness on European peace treaty issues may lead Russia to give ground.

Marshall's view was laid before congressional leaders at a White House conference in advance of his radio report to the nation at 8:30 tonight on the results of the Moscow foreign ministers conference.

Some of those who attended the two-hour session with the President and his cabinet officer last night said they came away with the impression that Marshall believes the unbending attitude he displayed at the Big Four meeting already has had the effect of making the Russians less sure of themselves in their demands affecting the future peace of Europe.

Baptists Decide To Build On Former Judge Boone Property On E. State

The new First Baptist church will be built on the church's E. State st. property adjoining McKinley school to the east, it was decided Sunday morning by a vote of the congregation.

It is familiarly known as the Judge Boone property.

The size of the property, owned by the church, is 120 by 187 feet. Tentative plans have been made with Architect Paul Bouchard of Youngstown, who is supervising the Salem public school building program.

Definite plans with the architect will be made at a meeting Wednesday night at the Presbyterian church, following the weekly prayer meeting. At that time sketches of churches will be reviewed for approval.

The Baptist church at the corner of S. Lincoln and E. State st., which was gutted by fire April 5, is in the process of being sold. Several firms have shown an interest in the property, but nothing definite has been decided as yet regarding its disposal.

Stalemate

The Moscow conference ends with one result: The conferees have agreed to disagree. As General Marshall points out, the only purpose served by the sessions was a clarification of just what the differences are. They are itemized, they are down in black and white; that they can be reconciled at any time in the near future seems doubtful.

This means the shape of the postwar world will have to be built on a system of balancing opposing forces rather than on international concert of action. Stable settlements are not impossible on such a basis, but they are much more difficult of realization. Those who visualized a brave new postwar world had hoped for something better.

What's Gained?

Decision of the Ohio pardon and parole commission to continue George Mason's application for parole until 1949 raises a question about the commission's logic.

If its purpose is to salvage as much as possible from the social wreckage washed up in the state's penal institutions, Mason's application for parole should have been granted now. If its purpose is to inflict punishment on a quid pro quo basis, its conclusion that Mason is still a criminal can be justified. The fact is that in making his escape in 1935 while serving a sentence for possession of burglary tools and explosive Mason did slug a guard. But the further fact is that he led an exemplary life thereafter and had been recommended for parole by the governor of Michigan, who yielded him to Ohio authorities, obviously in the belief his case would be handled with clemency.

There have been several occasions recently to wonder what the Ohio pardon and parole commission expects to gain by observing the letter of the law, at the expense of its spirit.

Economic Statesmanship

If the United States is going to depend on wage-raise formulas and patterns as a substitute for genuine collective bargaining there needs to be a high order of economic statesmanship among those who do the leading in this game of follow-the-leader.

"Big steel," which itself seemed to take its cue from "big electricity," has set a pattern of 15 cents an hour increase. This formula has been adopted by "big automobiles" and will have a considerable impact on "big coal." The repercussions of so-called basic settlements are beyond comprehension. WLB really started something with its "little steel" formula.

One gauges the importance of formula settlements best by imagining what a different formula would mean. Suppose electricity and steel, sobered by responsibility for national welfare, had decided to split the difference between union demands for more money and public requests for lower prices. There would have been the same repercussions, the same follow-the-leader impulse. The American people would find it easier than they are finding it now to speak of economic statesmanship without wondering if that's the right name for what they're getting.

Saving Whom?

Threats to scare congressmen away from pending union reform legislation are too little and too late. Most congressmen already have felt the pressure of the strongest pressure bloc there is—a majority of the American people.

The frantic roarings of "Red Mike" Quill in New York City and the protests of other labor leaders from coast to coast are dove-whispering compared to the angry murmuring of millions who think the campaign to give America to the union cabal has gone far enough.

The union bosses have had their chance. Some of them grew as their responsibility increased. Others just swelled. They earned the retribution they're resisting now by making all the mistakes which big business made before passage of the Sherman Act.

They demonstrated that they couldn't be trusted with the kind of unrestricted power bestowed on them during the 1930's. They demonstrated that too many of them were capable of putting themselves ahead of the national welfare.

Labor in the United States is everybody who works for wages. The majority of laboring people are outside the labor unions. In the minority belonging to the unions, moreover, are many who are skeptical of the kind of union leadership which produced the excesses that now need to be forbidden by legislation.

Probably as few as 100 men in the United States bear responsibility for those excesses. They are the only ones who would be affected directly by restrictions on the practices of labor unions, yet they are so powerful that they are trying to make it appear as if the whole fate of organized labor in the United States were at stake.

Most congressmen, being politicians, can spot a minority when they see one, particularly a minority trying to evade responsibility for its own mistakes.

There is nothing in the proposed reforms before Congress which would hurt labor, organized labor, or leaders of organized labor interested solely in improving the condition of American working people. There is a great deal in the proposed reforms which would cramp the style of the Quills, Petrillos and Tobins. "Save us!" they are crying.

Save whom?

A Form of Lead Poisoning

BY HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

RECENTLY I discussed treatment for lead poisoning. Today I would like to tell you about a specialized form of this danger, one which, unless great care is taken, may jeopardize workers engaged in the manufacture of the anti-knock gasoline which modern industry has given us for our cars.

The compound which gives gasoline its anti-knock quality is tetra-ethyl lead. Now this substance is highly poisonous and acts the more readily because the vapor it gives off is quickly taken up by the lungs and passed from them to the blood stream. It is safe when properly handled.

Risks of Poisoning

Risks of poisoning with this substance occur both in its manufacture and when it is mixed with gasoline. Unless great care is taken there is also some danger involved in cleaning storage tanks which have contained such gasoline.

Such storage tanks after a time contain a thick material on the bottom which contains many highly poisonous lead compounds.

According to Drs. David A. K. Cassells and Edward C. Dodds of London, the earliest symptoms in 25 cases of tetra-ethyl lead poisoning studied by them were disturbances of sleep and of digestion.

The classical signs and symptoms of lead poisoning such as pain in the abdomen, trembling, painful muscles, neuralgia, constipation, paleness of the skin and certain changes in the red blood cells either did not occur or were a very minor part of the picture. By far the earliest sign was sleeplessness. Following shortly after this symptom there were loss of appetite, sickness to the stomach, vomiting and diarrhea. Irritability, restlessness, nervousness and anxiety were the next symptoms. At this stage the pulse was usually slow, the temperature below normal and the blood pressure was low.

Diagnosis Not Difficult

As a rule it is not difficult to diagnose tetra-ethyl lead poisoning. The symptoms are fairly typical and in addition there is a history of exposure to lead. A determination of the amount of lead in the urine helps to give some ideas of the degree of exposure.

The dangers of working with tetra-ethyl leads are well understood and the use of proper safeguards will help to prevent poisoning from this source.

Insofar as treatment is concerned, all that is needed in the milder cases is to remove the patient from contact with tetra-ethyl lead, to have him take light exercise in the open air, to use a well-balanced diet with plenty of fluids and to relieve sleeplessness with one or the preparations used for this purpose, such as the barbiturates.

This treatment of severe cases require strict nursing care, the giving of plenty of fluids and sedative or quieting drugs. Glucose, a sugar in salt solution, may be given by injection into a vein.

Magnesium sulfate or one of the barbiturate preparations is used as a sedative. The giving of plenty of fluids aids in the elimination of the lead from the body. After severe exposure, it may require many months to get rid of the lead completely.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

If you feel like you are tied to a drag machine you try to do something? If you don't let a low blood count hold you back when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day, every hour—millions of red blood cells must pour forth on the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special potent activating ingredients.

Also SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric and digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky at gas, bloating and give off that sour taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with SSS Tonic. Start on SSS Tonic now. Vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you feel better, up better, feel better, work better.

By better, have a healthy color glow in your face—firm, fresh, all out hollows. Use millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic Builds Sturdy Health.

Household Hints

To prevent apples from splitting when baked in the oven, prick the skins with a fork while the fruit is still raw.

Always hang slacks or trousers by the legs after washing. The wet weight of the garment takes out most of the wrinkles and the slacks will need little pressing.

Ordinary soap and water are best for cleaning spun aluminum. Ice buckets, cheese trays and fruit baskets. Abrasives mar the finish.

★ WE, THE WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

DR. JAMES P. BENDER of the National Institute of Human Relations is trying to throw a scare into modern women.

Armer with his statistics, he claims that the number of divorced or widowed males is rapidly diminishing and that 17 per cent of all American men prefer to remain single. Who is to blame for this sad state of affairs? The women themselves, says Dr. Bender.

He also predicts that if women don't mend their ways, they will be sitting around looking at a lot of determined bachelors, "no matter how beautiful they are."

That's what a man makes out of those statistics. A woman might get another story.

So divorced and widowed men aren't marrying as fast as they used to, eh?

Maybe that is because women don't consider them such good bets, matrimonially speaking.

MAY NOT BE INTERESTED

Maybe the reason these men aren't getting remarried is because women know that taking on the job of bringing up another woman's children isn't as appealing as it used to be. Those were the days when there weren't so many other jobs open to women.

The fact that a certain number of men aren't marrying may be woman's fault, but not necessarily in the way Dr. Bender means. It may be that the women who could marry them just aren't interested.

DEPARTMENT OF INFORMATION

One of Salem High's ex-athletes is still burning up the tracks. Elliot Hansell, a Senior at Penn State, is current captain of the college's crack track outfit. Recently, preparatory to the Penn relays, Hansell was heard by many Salemites on a radio sports show on which he told of his home town and the great track teams that have been turned out here in the past.

One of Hansell's statements on the air recalled Salem's Night relays of pre-war days. That's one local event that is well known throughout the country and it's good to know that it will be revived here next spring.

Hansell is the Penn No. 1 dash man and has established some college records.

DEPT. OF CONJECTURE

The coaching situation in the district is comparatively well settled this year, but there still remain a few question marks.

Nearby Leticia is looking for a new coach to handle football and basketball in lieu of Joe Fortunato, who resigned late in March. To date the board of education hasn't made a decision, but it is reported that eight have applied for the job.

Among the applicants are Everett "Bud" Dean, former Salem High griddler under Coach Carl Schroeder and a graduate of Wittenberg college. Dean graduated from Salem High in 1939 and is now coaching near Springfield.

Jack Cramb, now of Youngstown college's grid staff, is also said to be an applicant. Another is the former coach of Bergholtz's undefeated teams and also a former Winterville mentor.

Selection of the new man probably won't be announced for some time yet, but it appears some top-notchers are seeking the job.

At Columbiana Coach Johnny Cabas seems well set, but it is known that he has received some attractive offers lately. Edwin "Bud" Bucher, one-time possibility for a transfer to Mount Union's staff, is staying at Lisbon.

The Boardman job hasn't been filled yet. But latest reports have it that Cyril James, now coach at Ursuline, has been offered the place and may take it. Cy is definitely looking for a change.

Another Youngstowner of great reputation as a football mentor, Howard Hartman, who turned out that powerful Woodrow Wilson last season, has been offered an assistant's job at Colgate, under Paul Bixler.

ODDS AND ENDS

Watch for Fred Cope's toastmastering at the basketball banquet Tuesday. He's really set for a good show. Hal Peck, Pat Pat Seery and Bobby Feller really looked great for the Tribe Saturday.

The outline of "The Fence" was evident in the stadium at Saturday's game. But no one would have needed it one way or the other. Seery's homer was in the upper stands and would have easily cleared a 40-foot fence. No other balls would have cleared it anyway. It isn't going to make homers too easy, that's for sure. It's five feet high, incidentally.

Jaycees are advance-billing their softball team as the "surprise" entry this season. They don't explain the surprise, one way or another. A lot of the softball American leaguers have already dubbed their loop the AA loop and the National the just plain A league. It sounds familiar for all the memory serves right the Bowling Center, 1946 city champs, were from the "poor" loop last season.

American, British, French and some small nation diplomats here said it proved the seriousness of American intentions in relation to Communism and, above all, the willingness of the United States to act as well as talk.

2. The right of international use of resources, such as those of the Ruhr and Silesia, which are basic to European economy. Marshall several times advocated giving a European economic commission the task of working toward that objective with the purpose of making Europe more of an economic whole.

Adamant On German Control
3. The declaration by Marshall on the original draft of his statement in the sixth week of the conference was toned down to avoid offense to Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, he virtually said flatly that the United States intended to keep its hand in the control of Germany for many years, with or without a Big-Four treaty.

4. The definition of democracy.
Marshall's statement during the German political discussions put the United States on record in favor of a democracy of individual freedom which many of his advisers regarded as one of the central issues in the conflict between Russia and America.

5. Repeated and largely successful American attempts to woo French support. The United States wants France clearly in the Western group of nations during the conflict with Russia and directed its attitude regarding the Saar, German coal and some other issues to that end.

6. The development of the whole German policy away from demilitarization to emphasis on rebuilding a peaceful Germany, unburdened by heavy reparations and able to support itself while making goods for all Europe.

Policy Faces Test

It remains to be seen whether the United States' policy will be popular with Germany's small neighbors, but American officials seem to think it will be because they consider it basically sound.

The development of the American policy on Germany and Europe has not been without difficulties, complications and fierce arguments within the delegation.

The most famous of the clashes was between John Foster Dulles and his so-called all-European approach and Gen. Lucius Clay and his primarily German approach.

Disagreements among advisers always occur at such meetings, but they appeared more often than usual during the Moscow meeting because of the peculiar position of the United States in relation to Germany and Europe. Except in wartime and the busiest period of Wilsonian activity, the United States never had a very positive European policy, preferring instead to go along with France and Britain.

After this war, however, neither of those two was in a position to give small nations the assurances they sought or otherwise create stability on the continent.

sin, Miss Audrey Jeanne Platt at salaried workers will get 12½ cents an hour increase under the one-year contract, retroactive to April 1.

Jones and Laughlin's two-year contract provides a 12½ cents boost for 25,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America (U. S. A.), which adjustments for wage inequities and differentials will work out to an average increase of 15 cents or more.

This was substantially the same agreement made April 20 by U. S.

Steel to increase wages of 142,000 production workers to an average of $147, under a two-year contract.

Its action was followed by similar settlements by Bethlehem Steel Co., Youngstown Sheet and Tube
Co., the Weirton (W. Va.) Steel Co. and three smaller companies on behalf of almost 270,000 workers.

The auto workers, who had demanded 23½ cents, agreed on April 24 to accept General Motors' offer of "the equivalent of 15 cents" an hour, with the straight time raise to be 11½ cents. General Motors first had offered the 220,000 UAW workers 10 cents, and raised that to 11½ on April 18.

On that same date, Westinghouse's 75,000 UE members had agreed on a settlement on the 15-cent pattern (11½ cents straight time) which first had been accepted on April 14 by the 30,000 UE employees of General Motors, involving chiefly the Frigidaire and Delco products divisions.
